How do we assess the progress of a child?

Anecdotal Journal

It is a written record of a child that includes who, what, how and sometimes where and when. This pictures exactly what happened without interpretation. It is used to record what the child did when playing or solving a problem, their interests basically anything.

1

Assessment Sheets

Assessment sheets are uploaded at the end of every term, which helps the teachers to understand the child's development in both the areas of scholastic and non-scholastic.

2

Digital Assessment

Digital assessment can be a valuable tool for assessing the progress and understanding of students. Individual Learning Plan is devised for every student based on their progress.

3
